

How to Prevent Brain Drain and Summer Slide

Brain drain and summer slide are a decline in reading ability and other academic skills that can occur over the summer months when school is not in session.

2 months of reading skills are lost over the summer.

2.6 months of math are lost over the summer.

Numerous studies show that children who don't read or engage in learning activities during summer vacation slip in reading and other academic abilities by the time school begins.

Over time, this loss can create a gap of 2-5 years by the time children reach high school.

6 weeks in the fall are spent re-learning materials covered the previous academic year.

2-3 hours per week are needed to prevent summer learning loss.

At New Horizon Academy, we have a cure for brain drain and summer slide.
